Romance of a Governor of the Volunteer State.

Interesting and Historical. To the Editor of the New York Tribune.

SIR: The St. Louis Globe-Democrat published some weeks since a private let-ter of President Jackson to General Sam. Houston, dated Washington, D. C., June 21, 18.9, preserved by and old Texan, a former friend of Houston, which has more than a personal history attached to it. President Jackson recalls his delightful meeting with his friend one year before, when as governor of Teunessee he was "about to be united to a beautiful young lady of accomplished manners and of respectable connections." As to his sudden determination to "settle among the Indians and become a savage," he exclaims: "Surely it is a dream," and he hints, that though now addressed at the Cherokee agency, Territory of Arkansas, his intention is to found in Texas a southwestern empire, reviving thus a scheme of other men in earlier times. The Globe-Democrat alludes to Houston's act, which called out this letter from his old friend, as "one of the most singular and utterly unexplained acts ever connected with General Houston or any other great historical character." As the true explanation has since his death been made known by his widow to those specially in-trusted with the preparation of his memoirs, the puplication of which is perhaps now indefinitely postponed, justice to truth and to Houston's memory as a model of true loyalty seems to demand the following statement of the proofs of that loyalty : As pastor of Senator Houston from 1845 to 1861, intimate with all his private himself responsible. He had become a thoughts as well as his public life, the thorough political organizer, and in his writer, when requested to contribute to the proposed memoir, was made acquainted with the fact of his marriage wound; keener and more lasting than that of the poisoned Indian arrow whose festering he used sometimes to show his friends. The attestation of his loyalty in all other relations unmistakable acts, is in perfect country. heard often from his own lips, and read in unmistakable acts, is in perfect accord with the authentic facts of history which any reader can verify even in brief Encyclopædia notices. There is not a particle of evidence in any preserved record which indicates a taint of disloyalty in any relations. Weller beat Broderick by only two tensors are represented as the control of the presented as the control of the legislature rather than see his rival chosen. In 1852 John B. Weller beat Broderick by only two tensors are represented to be United States senator, and actually spent seven years in a persistent and undaunted struggle for the prize. Three times—in 1851, 1855 and 1856—he prevented a choice by the legislature rather than see his rival chosen. In 1852 John B. Weller beat Broderick by only two Born in Virginia in 1793, left an orphan in boyhood, Sam. Houston went with his her by his own industry, thus early learning family loyalty. In 1813, at the age of twenty, he entisted under General Jackson is dead politically as Dennis Kearney now is the feet of the scheme. mother to Tenne see, where he supported in the Creek war, and for his repeated deeds of gallantry he so gained the esteem of Jackson that he urged him to remain permanently in the army. Resigning, however, and studying law in Nashville, he rose from office to office and in 1823, at the age of thirty he was elected to congress, and then again in 1827 was elected Governor of Tennessee. Up to this time Houston was unmarried. Universally adwhich called forth his letter of January 21, 1829. No one of Houston's companions loyalty of which, any man could be capadivised attachment was pronounced which been given and p edged to another before their meeting, and that filial duty had prompted her acceptance of his offer. Houston retired to his own cot, next day resigned his position, allowed the entire fault to appear to be his, permitted and encouraged her application for a divorce on the plea of disertion, and his bride was married to the man of her former effective.

Perley, and that if he had, Perley was not his equal. Then Terry stepped into the gap and resigning his judgeship for the purpose, sent Broderick a challenge, which was accepted. The duel was fought ten miles out of San Francisco on the morning September 13, 1859, with dueling pistols, at a distance of ten yards. Brederick's ball struck the ground a few paces immediately in front of Terry—Brokerick's hair trigger who denied it to the estimable lady who afterward became his wife.

The suggestion of ambitious designs, naturally assumed astrue by Jackson, was disproved by facts known to history. One year after that letter was written Houston was the chosen representative of the Cherokees at Washington. It was on a visit to Texas a year or two later that Houston was in the confederate army. After the war he drawn into Texas affairs. The large never tried. During the civil war he was in the confederate army. After the war he returned to San Francisco and practiced drawn into Texas affairs. The large Connecticut colony induced to go into law and re-entered politic. In August, Texas in 1820 had been in violation of Santa Anna's promises, in 1830 incorporated into the neighboring Mexican province was nominated as a presidential elector. of Coahuila and thus subject to Mexican law and government. These Americans in Texas with loyal intent, thereupon organized a distinct province, and they elected Houston as their delegate to the convention that had been called to revise the Mexican constitution, which in 1824 had borrowed largely from that of the United States. The colonists had increased in number to 20,000 when Houston became, the Mexican constitution, which in 1824 had been suffered by the most prevalement, dangerous and fatal affections that afflict mankind, and so varied and insidious in their character, that persons often suffer for a long time before knowing what alls them. The most characteristic symptoms are gradual wasting away of the whole body; p in in the back, side or loi s; a weak, feeble, exhausted feeling; lo s of appetite and dread of exercise; canty and painful discharge of ariously colored arine; minute shreds or casts in the urine; and, when the disease is of long duration, there is an account of the Mexican constitution, which in 1824 had borrowed largely from that of the United States. The colonists had increased in number to 20,000 when Houston became, their delegate. The crafty Santa Anna after repeated efforts for peace, did not begin hotilities until 1835. Though superior in ability. Houston did not become commander in chief till the post was resigned by Colonel S. F. Austin, the son signed by Colonel S. F. Austin, the son of the first colonist, in the autumn of 1835. Houston's clemency to Santa Anna after the massacres he had perpetrated was loyalty to the rules of war. During the eight years, from 1837 to 1845, of Texan independence. Houston was faithful to every, obligation of life. It was during this period that he obtained a divorce from the legislature of the state of which he was president, and married one of the most accomplished and devout of Christain women, who, with a large family of children, survives him. When, at last annexation could be effected, instead of siming at independent empire, Houston promoted to the utmost the annexation of the state of which he had been father. When in varied companies the remark was dropped that Lincoln would not be peaceably inaugrated, Houstod firmly said The man that attempts to prevent it shall walk over my dead body! True to his word, when on the day of inaugration videttes were at every street corner where the procession was to pass, close up to the left side of the carriage in which Lincoln sat with Buchanan on his right, the tall form of Houston, mounted and armed, was seen throughout the whole route pressing so closely up to the wheels that no man could have passed between.

Such a record should set aside any suspicion that Houston was not in every relation a model of loyalty. Retiring to the bosom of his family he lived two years in yet another political exile; but adored in his family, and 2 "not an alien from the commonwealth of the redeemed." GEORGE W. SAMSON. TERRY AND BRODERICK

feated in California. The defeat of one out of several presidential electors in a state is an extraordinary occurrence which has just been officially declared to have happened in Cali-fornia. David S. Terry is the democratic elector thus "left out in the cold." Had the pending election been as close as was that of 1876 Judge Terry's defeat might have changed the complexion of our history for four years at least. There can be little doubt that the causes of this defeat lie far back of the pending election, and must be traced to the killing of Senator David S. Broderick in a duel years ago by Judge Terry. Many old residents of the eighth ward remember David S. Broderick as a young democratic "boss" in that part of New York thirty-five years sgo. "Dave," the "fire laddie" and stone mason's apprentice, just before he left New York for San Francisco, owned a popular liquor saloon, which was the headquarters of the Tammany boys of Houston, Spring and Varick street neighborhoods. The immediate cause of "Dave's" leaving on the first attack of the gold fever in 1849 was his unexpected defeat for congress in a democratic district, for which undoubtedly he was new home as a fireman and ward politician he almost immediately acquired an majority. In 1853 no election for senator occurred. In 1854 Broderick hit upon the ingenious plan of choosing himself in ad is, and actually so unpopular as to be kept under watch by the aristocratic igilance committee of that period, Broderick, in 18.7, by bold political moves, was chosen United States senator, and had so much power as to be able to dictate who his colleage should be after obliging that colleague-Senator Gwin-in a memorable letter, which afterward became public, to agree that Broderick should enmired and urged by associates to form an joy all the patronage. This was an agree-alliance which seemed essential to his ment which president Buchanan refused to alliance which seemed essential to his station, a young lady of beauty and accomplishments was commended to him by family influence. His proposal of marriage was a cepted, and late in 1825 the marriage ceremony was performed with unusual pomp. The next day Houston resigned in the late of the seemed to him by tween the president and Broderick, who on one occasion on the floor of the senate averred that "the president's policy toward Kansas should be ascribed to the failing intellect, the petulent passion and the trembhis office, crossed the Mississippi into Arkansas, and December 11, 1828, wrote from the agency of his old Cherokee acquaintances the letter to president Jackson the congressional elections. During that canvass David S.
